

CanAssist is a unique university- and service-based organization dedicated to bringing about increased inclusion, accessibility and empowerment to those with special needs, while also increasing awareness and knowledge of disability issues.

At CanAssist, we:

- develop and distribute customized technologies;
- undertake meaningful, practical research;
- offer innovative community inclusion programs;
- provide numerous opportunities for student engagement; and
- partner with many community organizations.

We have developed more than 200 novel technologies, engaged several thousand students in our activities, worked with hundreds of volunteers, and served thousands of individuals with special needs and their families.
